FLIER KILLED IN AIR RACE

Mitchell Field, N. Y., Oct. 7 (A.P.)—Barry Russell, civilian aviator, was killed and Clarence D. Chamberlin, pilot, was injured today when their home-built monoplane crashed in the first event of the national air race.

The wrecked plane was one of six which started in the first heat of the five-mile course was recorded at 154 miles an hour. At this point one of the wings crumpled and the machine crashed in a mass of wreckage about half a mile from the starting point.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 8.—Bill McKechnie's Pirates had no other cheek to turn to the Senators today, so the Buccaneers rose in their wrath and seized the second game of the World Series from the Washington guests, taking the standing one-all.

The final score was Pirates 3, Senators 2. "Kiki" Cuyler was hero of the day. With one out and one on in the ninth, "Kiki" hit a home run, the third of the game, scoring Moore ahead of him, and breaking a 1 to 1 deadlock.

The game was marred by an accident to Bluege, Washington third baseman, who was hit in the head by a pitched ball in the sixth inning. He was badly hurt and had to retire from the game.

Joe Judge, first man up in the Senators' half of the second inning, socked out the third baseman of the Pirates for the first score of the game. Joe Harris followed with a single, but died standing, and there was no further damage.

HUB BOY SOUGHT AS SLAYER OF MASTER

Westboro, Oct. 8.—An iron pipe, in which strands of grain hair and bloodstains were found, reveals what the police believe is the murder of Edward Rose, fifty-two years old, master at the Lyman school for boys here, following receipt of threats by letter to kill him. He failed to return to his cottage after parking his auto in a garage 300 yards from the house.

One suspect hunted in the case is a Boston youth, backed with the knowledge that the missing teacher had recently received a death threat, for that he was murdered and his body dragged to Lake Chauncy, a mile distant.

Friends of the missing man said today they supplied the note to have come from the Knights of the Flaming Cross. It is an organization formed to combat the Ku Klux Klan.

Why Rose should have gotten such a note his friends don't say.

MITCHELL DEFIES NAVY COURT, WON'T TESTIFY

Washington, Oct. 8 (A.P.)—Colonel William Mitchell today refused to testify before the naval court of inquiry investigating "the Shenandoah" wreck and threw that proceeding into a tangle that must be unraveled by the higher officers of the navy and war departments.

Appearing before the navy court for questioning about remarks that the Shenandoah wreck might be attributed to almost treasonable and criminal neglect, the Colonel held aloof from the oath of office by citing the court martial proceedings against him in the army. He acted, he said, by advice of counsel.

Thrown off its scheduled program, the naval court adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning and continued on Page 2, Column 1.

ALL IN LAST BAR EXAM MUST STAND NEW TEST

Announcement was made today that all persons who took the last bar examinations must try again on January 3, 1926.

George S. Tait, secretary of the Massachusetts Board of Bar Examiners, who made the announcement, stated evidence had been procured to support the charge that examination questions had been sold several days before the tests.

As a result it has been ruled that those who passed the examination

GUARDED BY ARMED POLICEMEN

We are continuing our payroll delivery service, which we have maintained with the co-operation of the police and without loss or trouble for nearly twenty years.

This service has been of great value to our customers. Our men have been carefully selected and trained. They have pride in the service and an earnest desire to continue it.

While we regard the present crime wave as temporary and have faith in the ability of the constituted authorities to cope with it, nevertheless it is a time for extra precautions. We have, therefore, added uniformed Boston policemen to our already heavily armed trucks.

With this and other special safeguards, our trucks are delivering payrolls as usual.

MITCHELL DISOBEYS ORDER; DEFIES COURT, WON'T TESTIFY

FEARS TALE WILL HURT HIS TRIAL

FIRST PICTURES OF MACMILLAN ON HIS RETURN FROM THE ARCTIC

Meanwhile high officials will determine what is to be done. CAN IMPRISON HIM.

The Naval Court was inclined to hold that Colonel Mitchell, having appeared under orders from the Adjutant-General, was entitled to the city and that the next move was up to the War Department. War Department officials declined to decide their course in advance of a formal communication from the Navy Court.

It was learned, however, that the order given Colonel Mitchell directed him only to "appear" before the navy court. Whether his refusal to testify should be construed as a failure to appear or not would say.

Colonel for the navy court said that body had power to impose penalties on service men who refused to take the oath, the maximum being a $500 fine and imprisonment for six months, but the court will hold off until it learns the inside of the circumstances surrounding Colonel Mitchell's orders.

After he had objected to being sworn under the order of the Army directing him to appear, a formal subpoena for his appearance was issued, Judge Advocate Ford delivered it in person and Mitchell refused to accept service under advice of his counsel.

While the court was in executive session determining its course after Mitchell had objected to taking the oath, Representative Reid made public a communication which the colonial sent yesterday to the Adjutant-General of the Army.

Advised officially that Colonel Mitchell had refused to appear, the court directed the Adjutant-General to communicate that fact to the War Department which originally had ordered Mitchell to come before the court and give testimony.

Cul Mitchell's communication to the Adjutant-General said: "I herewith request that the orders from the Adjutant-General delivered copy has been sent to headquarters."

October 7, 1925, that I report to the Naval Court of Inquiry at 10 a. m., October 8, 1925, be received.

"My reasons are as follows: "46—I have been notified by the War Department that court martial proceedings are impending against me.

"47—I am advised by my counsel that it would be inconsistent with my legal rights and might prejudice my case should I be required to testify before the Naval Court on matters liable to be the subject of inquiry in possible court martial proceedings.

"My counsel advises me not to testify at this time before the Naval Court, but to request a delay until final action shall have been made on my court martial proceedings.

"This communication is sent direct to you to send it through the headquarters district of Washington. As there is not sufficient time for me to send it through the headquarters district of Washington, I am sending it direct to you."

Meanwhile a study of legal points will be made by army authorities. Under precedents the army would testify and the court would be advised that further action rested with the colonial.

6 HURT AS PICK HITS DYNAMITE

Waterbury, Ct., Oct. 8 (A.P.)—Six men were injured, three of them seriously, when a workman struck the percussion cap of a charge of dynamite with his pick today.

The accident occurred on the water department job, which the city is installing a water main. All the men were employed by the city as is.

M'MILLAN SHIP FIGHTS ROUGH WEATHER

Radio Makes No Mention of Peary; Explorer Regrets Sargent's Death

Portland, Me., Oct. 8 (A.P.)—A radio message from Commander Donald B. MacMillan on the schooner Bowdoin, recounted the progress the ship is making on the last leg of her journey from the Arctic to Monhegan Island and Wiscasset. "The Bowdoin made a fine run to White Haven," the message read, "and then bucked a head wind until noon, when wind veered to south and we disabed with starboard rail awash until off Beaver Island, until 4 p. m. when forced to reduce sail in sharp squall. There is still a heavy sea running but we are pushing on. Supper suffered because it was too rough to lay the table even with rocks as weights. Dearly moved to town of George Raymond Sargent's sudden death." Since no mention of the steamer Peary was made in the message, J. R. Hildebrand of the National Geographic Society concluded the two ships had not yet met. The Peary, which had preceded the Bowdoin down the coast from Labrador, arrived at Halifax Tuesday and was to join the rest of the expedition at once.

Grid Player With MacMillan to Rush Back to Rensselaer

St. John, N. B., Oct. 8 (A.P.)—Somewhere off the southwestern Nova Scotia coast the schooner Bowdoin of the MacMillan expedition and her companion ship, the steamer Peary, are headed southward and homeward, according to their prearranged plans.

There is eager anticipation aboard the two vessels although none of the party will admit having had anything but a perfect summer. The Navy personnel under Lieutenant Commander Richard E. Byrd, Jr., whose three plans covered 5,700 miles in Arctic flying, are anxious to get home as soon as possible. A part of the national air races at Mineola, Long Island, this month.

Another who is impatient is Richard Salmon of Larchmont, N. Y., a student, who had hoped to be a football candidate and even now will go out in an effort to gain experience which will enable him to "make" the team next year.

and must take the examination over again.

Mr. Tarr said: "The investigation conducted by Attorney-General Henton and the Suffolk County Character Committee has satisfied the examiners that a number of the examinees' questions were distorted and used at the last examination."

"The board, therefore, has decided that before it can recommend the admission of any applicants was passed, a new examination must be given."

"The board regrets the hardship which will result in the case of innocent applicants, but the public welfare and the good of the legal profession must be considered as paramount."

"No new examination petition or further fee will be required, but all applicants who intend to take the examination are requested to send their names to the board ten days before the examination."

LINER'S CREW TELL OF HEARING S-51'S APPEAL FOR LINE

Captain Diehl Testifies Red in Vision Too Late to Avert It

Testimony that the search lights on the Savannah liner City of Rome blew out two fuses at the time she rammed and sank the submarine S-51 was given at the resumed hearing before local steamboat inspectors today.

The hearing was held in the Appraiser's Room on Atlantic avenue by Captain Herman T. Purcell and John Stewart, local inspectors, the witnesses including Captain J. H. Diehl, master of the steamship and Chief Engineer William Bolt.

Chief Engineer Bolt, who lives at 16, 184 Fulton avenue, New York, gave the testimony regarding the searchlights, adding he was informed late two bits of copper had touched, causing the fuses to blow out.

Captain Diehl, the first witness, had previously testified that the fuses were in good working condition previous to the collision.

Captain Diehl testified that on the night of the disaster, watchmen were on duty on the decks and in the saloon of the City of Rome, making their rounds every half hour.

He said he was sure there had been no previous trouble with the searchlights, as he had them tested

QUIZZING DIEHL IN S-51 PROBE

Seated between the two men stenographers is Captain J. H. Diehl, master of the Boston steamship City of Rome, testifying at Federal investigation of the sinking of the United States submarine S-51 off Block Island by his vessel on the night of September 23. The hearing is being held in the Appraiser's Room on Atlantic avenue. Diehl admitted that he saw a white light for some time before the collision that cost thirty-three lives of the submarine crew.

earlier in the evening, and they were in good order.

At the time of the disaster Capt. Diehl said he was in the pilot house.

"I went to the starboard window," he said. "I saw a white light on the starboard bow. I believed it was a star. I looked out of the window and then stepped out and talked a minute with the third officer."

"Then I looked again. The light seemed to be getting larger. It looked rather low."

MAKING TEN KNOTS. "We had better go slow," I said. "Then the red light appeared. I sung out: 'Hard a port,' and pushed the telegraph back."

"I ran to the starboard side through a stateroom and looking out saw a light. There was a red light and one or two white lights. I couldn't tell how close they were. They were off to an angle of 45 degrees."

"I suppose they were the submarine lights, but I couldn't tell at the time."

The engineer testified the City of Rome was making about ten knots when the disaster occurred.

He testified that no one had called to his attention any trouble with the searchlights, but said when turned on they burned for a minute and then went out.

Someone told him, the witness said, that two pieces of copper touched, causing two fuses to blow out, and that it was useless to try to fix them.

HEARD CALL FOR LINE. Engineer Bolt testified that four blasts of the steamer's whistle were sounding about fifteen seconds before the disaster. He thought he saw lifeboats in the water. He heard calls of "There's a line."

The submarine at that time, he said, was about fifteen feet away and drifting by so rapidly there was no time to throw a line.

H. A. Kelley, radio operator, could not remember that messages sent out concerned the accident.

Captain Diehl was recalled to the stand to tell of the radio messages that he sent out. He said that he sent his first message to the company, reporting to them that he had sunk a submarine and had rescued three men.

Questioned as to why he did not notify the naval base at New London before 12:45, he said that he had ordered the radio operator to notify Newport, but that that operator Kelley had told him that he could not get Newport and that when he tried to get Chatham the last named station was busy.

James Delaney, an officer, was the last witness. He said that immediately after the crash that the order for full speed astern was given and continued with.

G. R. SARGENT'S DEATH MOVES McMILLAN

Explorer Radices Condolences
From Sea; Funeral to Be Held Saturday

Condolences in the death of George Raymond Sargent, veteran Boston Evening American reporter, who died while covering the return from the Arctic of Commander Thomas A. M. McMillan, were received from the famous explorer today.

Commander McMillan is on the high seas bound for Wachuset. He is feared his ship, the Houston, which sailed from Sidney, N. S., shortly before the death of the newsman.

The message, sent by wireless, was received by the ship, and by A. Wallace Everett, the only amateur radio operator in the United States who has been in constant touch with McMillan. Mr. Everett forwarded it to the Boston Evening American by telegraph.

FUNERAL SATURDAY
The funeral of Commander McMillan will be held at 2 o'clock by the Rev. Louis C. English of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Relatives and friends are invited to attend.

Mr. Sargent's body is on the way from Sydney, Nova Scotia, where he died in harness while covering the return from the Arctic of Explorer McMillan.

Miss Phyllis Richardson Is Made Mrs. Henry de Ford, Jr.

Bride in Nuptial White Was Exquisite Figure in Ceremonial Performed in Lady Chapel, Emmanuel Church

Butty Alden

MRS. HENRY DE FORD, JR. (PHYLLIS Richardson) was an exquisite little figure in nuptial white for her marriage ceremony, celebrated in the Lady Chapel of Emmanuel Church before a small and smart company of Boston's elite. The bride's sole attendant was her twin sister, Miss Suzanne Richardson, and her father, Philip Richardson, gave her in marriage.

ROSE POINT LACE and satin meshed in old every that, tale and orange blossoms—these were fashioned into picture bridal robes after the old French Court mode. The snug lace with its bertha of rose point, the full round skirt showing a petticoat of rose point, a train with bindings of rose point, a misty tale well bound by a fillet—were more becoming.

THE MAIDS OF HONOR GOWN were crisp green taffeta, also with snug basque and round skirt with pearl pointed overskirt. Slipper of silver, a touch of silver tulle and touches of silver on the frock, with bouquet of varietal blossoms, were costume accessories smart in the extreme.

MRS. PHILLIP RICHARDSON, with her costume of black chiffon in coat effect over black and gold brocade, and chapeau of crush velvet marked with gold, added much to the sartorial effect of the company, as did also Miss Catherine Richardson, eldest daughter of the Philip Richardson, and the bride's sister, Mrs. Frederic L. W. Richardson.

VERY MODEST was Mrs. Frederic Richardson in black satin with tones of purple, a small black hat and jaunty scarf of black and purple. Miss Catherine Richardson, true to her forte, wore an artistic black frock of white, figured brilliantly in black and red and black; her hat a wide floppy affair, repeating the black note.

THE FREDERIC RICHARDSON'S daughter, Miss Marjory Richardson, was her usual lovely self in tan frock and hat, and the Richardson brothers, Fred, Eric, Jr. and Arthur, were turned out for their country's wedding in blue Jackie suits and tan hats.

UNDER Mrs. F. L. W. Richardson's wing that the bride and her twin sister made their leave to local society some two seasons ago—and has been rather brightly through a hectic winter with the bud get. Miss Catherine Richardson, youthful artist with a steadily growing fame, made the reception following the ceremonial doubly interesting with a showing of her work.

HER FAMILY AND FRIENDS are justly proud of the rising star in the artistic firmament, and much praise came her way yesterday. Last summer she was with the Provincetown colony of artists, and before that lived and studied abroad, mainly in Paris, where significant honors were hers, as the young member ever to exhibit in the Salon.

SHE PLANS a large exhibition later this season, by the way, when the public may see her various works. But to return to the wedding, the ceremony was more attractive than Mrs. Oliver Ames, Jr., who brought her little daughter, Corrie, to the ceremony.

MISS MARY JAMES is in Baltimore for the marriage of her cousin, Miss Olivia Dulang Wheeler, and Thomas Rush Sturges.

5-51 VICTIM BURIED IN BROOKLYN TODAY

Newark, N. J., Oct. 8 (A.P.)—The body of William C. Teaschmache, of Bangor, Pennsylvania, a member of the crew of the missing submarine S-51, was taken to Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn, today, for burial after church services here. A naval escort accompanied the body.

The body of Frederick Teaschmache, a twin brother, also a member of the crew, had not been recovered. Newark was the home of some of the family.

SCORNS BRITISH FASCISTS AS SPECIAL CONSTABLES

London, Oct. 8 (A.P.)—Attempts of British Fascists to enroll as special constables have been abandoned in Liverpool, Wolverhampton and Manchester. A letter from the chief constable of Manchester to the commander of the Manchester Fascists was read at a meeting of the Manchester City Council, declining the offer of the Fascists to join the special constabulary because he was confident the citizens of Manchester were as ready now to help the police in maintaining order as they had been.

Mrs. John S. Lawrence Sponsors the Style Exhibit of N. E. Mills in Hub

"From kitchenette to ballroom in a cotton dress."

A wide step, but one that will be made possible through the efforts of Mrs. John S. Lawrence, and other Boston social leaders. She has temporarily abandoned society's merry whirl to take over the huge cotton manufacturing business which bears her husband's name.

"Wear cotton and popularize New England fabrics," says Mrs. Lawrence. It is to boost New England's greatest industry that Mrs. Lawrence, business to the Prince of Wales at her beautiful North Shore estate last year, has "gone into trade."

In the interests of the New England Association of Cotton Manufacturers style show at the Copley-Place, Oct. 14, Mrs. Lawrence consented to manage her husband's gigantic business interests.

SOCIAL SPONSORS. Three other Boston society women, wives of prominent cotton men, who have followed Mrs. Lawrence's example are Mrs. Morgan Butler, Mrs. Nathaniel W. Ayer and Mrs. Robert Almy.

Women who have associated cotton only with girlish house dresses will have fairplay brought to the ballroom of the Copley-Place, the night of Oct. 14 when cotton dress goods will be transformed into gowns and wraps of silvery loveliness.

LIVING MODELS.

The "dancer girl" in Paris gowns, both for daytime and evening wear, will be exhibited by 60 living models. Every gown shown will be made of cotton, from luxurious wrappings and coats for military, to smart street suits and velvety afternoon gowns.

The show will be a revelation to every woman in the country who thinks of cotton only in terms of gingham and percale," says Mrs. Lawrence.

"But few people know what beautiful dress goods are made from cotton today. We have cotton velvets and broadens which are truly extraordinary."

FASHION AUTHORITIES.

Conde Nast, editor of VOGUE, leading fashion magazine, and Mrs. Chase, fashion editor, will act as judges and award prizes in the forms of medals to the mills showing the best morning, afternoon and evening gowns.

More than twenty New England mills will be represented. Each will exhibit three models. These gowns, made entirely of the choicest cotton goods, will be copied from Paris models by Jordan Marsh Co., Hildesheim and Mrs. Lydia Coleman, the first Boston society woman to start the vogue of "going into trade."

The hundreds of Boston women who will not be fortunate enough to attend the style show will have the opportunity of seeing the cotton creations in the assembly room of Jordan & Marsh, Friday and Saturday of next week.

ACHES AND PAINS RAIL OVER BODY

Mrs. Proctor Reports Great Benefit by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sharpsburg, Pa.—"I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all suffering women. I have taken four bottles of it and I feel 100 percent better. I was dizzy and weak with no appetite, no ambition and with tired feeling all the time. I had aches and pains all over my body and had the headache a good deal. I saw your advertisement in the Pittsburgh Press and thought it might help me. I have been greatly benefited by its use and highly recommend it to all ailments of women."—Mrs. J. H. Crockett, Box 1, East Liberty Station, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Such letters prove the great merit of the Vegetable Compound. These women know by experience the benefits they have received. Their letters show sincere desire to help other women suffering from like ailments. Let these experiences help you—now.

In a recent canvass of women purchasers, 98 out of every 100 report beneficial results by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Sold by druggists everywhere.

MINIMUM WAGE LAW ARGUED

Washington, Oct. 8 (A.P.)—The right of States to enforce minimum wage laws was argued today in the Supreme Court in an appeal by Arizona aimed to establish such authority of States under the commerce of their police power to fix minimum wages for women. The Supreme Court recently held a Federal minimum wage law for the District of Columbia invalid.

A. Bardal, a storekeeper in No.

gales, representing that he could not pay four women clerks the minimum wage of $18 a week provided in the Arizona law, attacked its constitutionality with success in the Federal District Court in that State, and from that condition Arizona appealed.

The Industrial Welfare League of California was permitted to file a brief in the case, sustaining the position taken by Arizona.

AMERICAN GIRL ENGAGED TO PRINCE

Alice Volk, Heiress to Millions, Will Marry Prince Liechtenstein

London, Oct. 8.—A romance in which one of the parties is an American girl, has culminated in the engagement of Princess Johannes de Liechtenstein and Alice Elizabeth Volk. The girl is a grand daughter and the heiress of bankers de Omea, wife of Countess de Omea, who until last summer was the Brazilian Ambassador at London.

The Prince is a son of the third branch of the house of Liechtenstein. He is now 32, while the bride-elect is 27.

This will not be the first early marriage in her family, as Princess de Omea was not 17 when, as Elizabeth Bates also married the Volk of New York.

After the death of her first husband she married James Thomas New York dry goods king, who, he has will, be quoted her between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000.

Senhora de Omea, daughter of Alice's father, Adolf Volk, and will his share of her fortune to her granddaughter. The marriage settlement is not completed but the future Prince will inherit at least $7,000,000.

EX-TEACHER IS LIVING ON $1.07 A DAY

Only 92 of 287 Instructors on the Pension Roll Receive $600 Annually

A cruel law which forbade the Boston school board from paying pensions beyond $400 a year through the pension board for aid from Mrs. Louisa H. Craig, retired teacher, who has been living on $1.07 a day, has been striking out a measure of justice for the past ten years on retirement pay amounting to $1.07 a day.

Mrs. Craig asked Edward M. Sullivan of the school board for a slight increase in her stipend in order to compete with the expenses which have been gradually increasing as the infirmities of old age are availing her.

LAW PROHIBIT.

"I am heartily in favor of granting Mrs. Craig's request," said Mr. Sullivan, "but the laws of the proud State of Massachusetts prohibit the Boston school board from giving its retired teachers enough to live on."

It was estimated that twenty-eight retired teachers are living on less than $1 a day.

"Of the 287 teachers on the pension roll only 92 get $600 a year, my opinion, for teachers who have given 30 years' service to the city," said Mr. Sullivan.

The teachers who are being retired now get that sum, but the teachers who were retired under the old law get varying amounts, many of which are insufficient to pay on account of the increased cost of living to afford a decent and comfortable old age.

SPECIAL ACT NECESSARY.

"When the pension of Charles P. Tilton, master of the English High School, was increased, it was necessary to get a special act of the Legislature. We will have to do the same thing in the case of Mrs. Craig."

"But when we do it for Mrs. Craig, I am going to try and do it for all the other old retired teachers who are getting less than $500 a year," said Mr. Sullivan.

SENATOR BUTLER TO ADDRESS MEN'S CLUB

Senator Butler will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Park Street Church Men's Club on Wednesday night in the church. William C. Crapp will be toastmaster. Other speakers will be Frank H. Rosen, president of the club, the Rev. A. J. Conrad, D. D., pastor of the church, Alfred H. Colby and Holland H. Houston.

ATTENDANCE AT FOOD FAIR IS MOUNTING

Lighthouse Built of Salt Is One of the Chief Centers of Interest

A steadily increasing interest in the Boston 1925 Food Fair, now being conducted under the auspices of the Boston Retail Merchants' Association, was noted today when the attendance records came near being shattered.

The large crowd came early and were intent upon noting the artistic arrangements of the wide variety of exhibits.

A huge tower of salt, built in the form of a lighthouse and placed in the center of the fair, is one of the chief centers of interest.

What the KNOCK-TEST Proves!

ROAD tests of thousands of motorists have already confirmed our claims for the New Colonial Gasoline.

Here is a Laboratory Test—which offers scientific proof!

The charts below are reproduced from actual photographs of tests made of New Colonial Gasoline and four other leading brands of gasoline sold in this vicinity.

We used a carefully adjusted instrument attached to the cylinder of an internal combustion motor and especially designed to show knocking tendencies of gasoline. Then laboratory photographs were made of the results. The tests of the different gasolines were all made at the same time, in the same machine and under identical conditions.

THE curves show the different burning characteristics of the New Colonial Gas and other gasolines. Upon the comparative smoothness of the right-hand line in each chart depend the smoothness and efficiency of the motor. New Colonial Gas has a curve without a jagged saw-tooth edge. Which means a gas without a knock!

The jagged line in the case of other gasolines proves the presence of "borderland mixture". Our process of refining eliminates it from New Colonial Gas—takes out the knock, and gives you a cleaner, more efficient motor, with more power, greater mileage, and a minimum of crank-case dilution.

And yet New Colonial Gas costs you no more than ordinary gasoline

DEHAM ELEVEN OPENS SEASON IN HIGH SPEED

ONLY THREE VETS LEFT ON SQUAD

Wealth of Material Makes the Prospects Very Bright for Coach Southerland

By GEORGE W. GRIMM.

On the outskirts of Boston lies the picturesque town of Dedham. This well-known town, of considerable size, is the scene of the activities of the high school sport program. About 60 players came up from the freshman and sophomore teams well grounded in fundamentals. The best promising squad in years as far as vets go, but many youngsters give promise of developing into good players as were lost at the 1924 graduation.

Of the vets from last year's eleven Coach Southerland has but three regulars, three reserves and three substitutes. The most widely expected backfield men in the game this season are Red Grange of Illinois and Tryon of Colgate. Grange is of the "old school" type, such as "Big Boy" and "Big Boy" is on the killer line. A vicious runner and tackler like Mahan. The game hasn't changed so much that a comparison of these men is impossible.

Never during the three years that Casey played football for Harvard did he fail to go over and win for the Crimson. Excuses can be made for Grange this year, in that he has been overpressed and, as a result, every team will have two or three men as good as dead to him, both offensively and defensively. The result will be that he won't be able to stand up his own game.

More promising as regular linemen for the first team are Thomas Mel, William Shannon and Samuel.

Seen on the line, with James Burns, John Butler and Henry Cassidy following hard for openings in the back field.

During a period of six years the Dedham High football team have lost but nine games, while in a period of three years have taken a trip to victory from one of their rivals, Hyde Park High.

The Dedham High schedule for the remainder of the season finds the Black and Red opposing on October 12, at Dedham High at Dedham; 17, Natick High at Dedham; 23, Brighton High at Brighton; 21, New Wood High at Norwood; November 7, Lexington High at Dedham; 14, Hyde Park High at Dedham.

All home games are being played on Stone Park, Dedham. In the meantime Manager Edward Ambrose is seeking games with any of the other high schools for November 11.

School Notes

Harvard misses the services of Casella, its right tackle, who broke his collarbone in the game with Nashua. His successor, Quintel, was a target for the majority of the Maiten guns last week, and will have to show more stuff to hold his position.

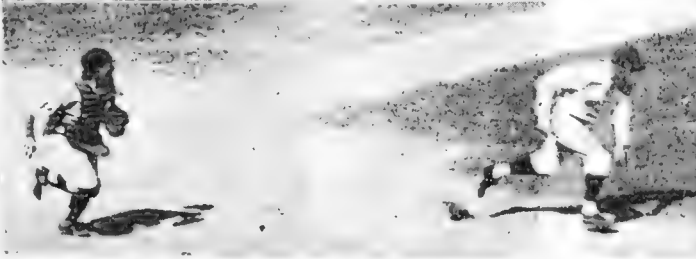

Adam Elzevitz, captain of the Rindge Tech team this Fall, with only three veterans back, has a tough assignment on his hands. An end for the past three seasons, he has been shifted to fullback where he will do practically all of the pushing, putting and carrying.

Lynn English High will have to improve its overhead game, both on offense and defense if it hopes to win the majority of its games this season. Salem won from English on a long pass and Peabody came near taking the game out of the Lynn team's hands on the same style of offense.

Chelsea High has shifted its line up for the game with Beverly, this week Howell, center, has been shifted to tackle, while Powers, a new comer, has been given Howell's job at the snapper back berth. The change has been needed to balance the line, which was rather ragged against Winthrop.

Joe Robinson, a transfer from Swampscott High, is making a great showing in the Lynn Classical line-up. His work was a big feature of the game which the Lynn team won over Beverly, Capt. Shanahan, the star end, is another man who covered himself with glory in the Beverly win.

Save a Life!

The Boston Evening American Will Pay $300 a Day to Make Child Life More Secure on New England Highways—"LOOK and LIVE!"

Spurred by the report of the Motor Vehicles Department that the number of automobile fatalities in Massachusetts last week was 100 per cent. greater than the number reported in the previous week, and higher by 14 than the figures for the corresponding week one year ago, the Boston Evening American has inaugurated a "Save-a-Life" campaign.

The appeal of this campaign is directed to two great groups of our citizens:

1st—Motorists.

2nd—Fathers, mothers, guardians and teachers.

An appeal is made to the thoughtless driver to drive carefully; to the careful driver, to drive MORE carefully.

Little children are asked to LOOK, before they cross a street; to cross only at street crossings, and whenever possible to select the crossing guarded by their good friend, the policeman.

To focus attention upon the increasing dangers of the highway, the Boston Evening American will distribute $300 daily in REWARDS OF MERIT. There will be ten $20 gold-placers for careful motorists, and fifty $2 bills for the school banks of careful children. Every day, we shall print facsimiles of FIVE NUMBER PLATES, the registration numbers of five motorists reported to be CAREFUL DRIVERS. And every day we shall print the names and addresses of FIFTY SCHOOL CHILDREN who have been observed to cross the street carefully in the neighborhood of schoolhouses.

In thus inaugurating its "Save-a-Life" campaign, this newspaper believes it is adding one more item to a long list of public services. We have called attention to the fact that of the 938 persons who lost their lives in the automobile accidents of Massachusetts highways in 15 months, 333 were CHILDREN. Last week's deaths numbered 25. This menace is EVERYBODY'S business; it is time everybody got busy about it.

Is it always the motorist who is at fault?

Some officials say that NOT ONCE IN SEVEN TIMES—others say not once in NINE times—is the man at the wheel blameable for what are called "automobile" fatalities. In between 70 per cent. and 90 per cent. of these fatalities the fault lies with the pedestrian.

Grown-ups step out into the roadway from behind parked cars; they almost leap from sidewalk crowds into the street.

Children ride on street cars, or they "catch" rides on trucks or horse-drawn vehicles, and without warning drop off into the pathway of automobiles.

Let us all take the occasion as this "Save-a-Life" campaign to correct our own fault; the pedestrian, to use his head as well as his feet, every time he crosses the street; the motorist, to "Save a Life" at every opportunity, and all of us to LOOK in order that we may LIVE.

Save a Life!

Down With the Oligarchy!

The President at Omaha Pointed the Way

Before the American Legion in national convention at Omaha, the President, who is ex-officio Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy, unexpectedly condensed, in one of the most dangerous of "the feet of our own Household," the self-same, self-perpetuating oligarchy in "the Federal City" which Colonel William Mitchell exposed in his dramatic appeal to the American people as the bane of aviation and the enemy of National Defense.

This is the oligarchy which has not only treated aviation as "the step-child of the Army and Navy," but has treated Mr. Coolidge, ever since he became President, as if he were still Vice-President of the United States.

This is the oligarchy which has made of the legitimate agency of military information an illegitimate agency of military propaganda.

This is the oligarchy which would sap the independence of a free press by planting in every newspaper office in the land an editorial propagandist with a commission in the Officers' Reserve Corps.

This is the oligarchy which is daily engaged in deceiving the public regarding the program of the Executive for reducing the burden of Federal taxation and eliminating waste from the administration of the Army and Navy.

This is the oligarchy which must be overturned before aviation can be rescued from the strait-jacket into which the oligarchy has put and kept it, and developed into a real arm of the National Defense.

This is the oligarchy which must be driven from the control of the War and Navy Departments if these departments are to be reorganized, and the burden of Federal taxation decreased and the effectiveness of the National Defense increased by the establishment of a Department of Defense.

If the American Legion will respond to the militant summons of President Coolidge and support him in a country-wide warfare against this oligarchy, the American oligarchy, it will be overturned and the long pilgrimage of "the First citizen of the United States" from Washington to Omaha will have proved well worth while.

To Scrutinize New Laws

Martin Littleton, experienced lawyer, makes a sensible suggestion to the American Bankers' Association to relieve the congestion of litigation.

He urges that the House of Representatives and the Senate appoint standing committees to inquire into the constitutionality of proposed Federal legislation. The judiciary committee of both branches may consider the constitutionality of all bills presented, but these committees lack the time and resources to give proper attention to that phase of legislation.

The ideal method of government is through the enactment of as few laws as necessary and the impartial enforcement of every law enacted. Mr. Littleton's suggestion is a gesture toward that desirable condition.

Joys and Glooms

TWO PHASES SHOWN IN IMAGINATION

By Garrett P. Serviss
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

THE names of Jules Verne and Camille Flammarion have been coupled as representing the name of imaginative work, both having chosen the first of science for the pivot of their fancies of literary invention. Flammarion's preference was for astronomy; Verne's for geography. They produced in addition to their popular fictions valuable educational and instructive works in their particular departments, and both had phenomenal success with the public, all over the civilized world.

But it seems to me that instead of being alike they were widely different. They represented two distinct phases of imagination.

Read any of Jules Verne's stories—and the best of them yet remain unsatisfied in their promise of inspiring a wondering interest—and you will remark that his imagination had a practical quality, a quality absent from Flammarion's.

Verne's Heroes

Mr. Verne put the engineer into fiction, and the engineer who was sent on that stage is at least as captivating and absorbing a character as the detective.

All of Verne's heroes are at bottom arithmeticians. They all live in the wide-awake world, in which three dimensions are found sufficient. No ghosts stalk in Verne's scenes. Jules Verne dealt only with the solid, substantial physical world, in which level-headed persons can produce surprising and delightful results by the combination of common sense, energy, audacity and not extrinsically exact knowledge.

Verne's practical imagination, however, was dared to predict and describe, with a success that is unrivaled in the history of literature, the mechanical triumphs and marvels of a new age, on whose dawn he stood. It did not wonder in a misty dreamland; it searched out wonders in full daylight. Jules Verne was the forerunner prophet of the magic-working twentieth century.

Flammarion showed a different quality. Even in astronomy he was a mystic. Take his first success and in some respects his greatest, his "Real Worlds and Imaginary Worlds." In it the imagination lives upon itself.

There is a lack of scientific method, a lack of backed-up logic, a lack of imagination that it appeals to its like. The book owed its immense success to the popularity of its theme. Like all his works it had much of the sentimental writing that is more appreciated among his countrymen than with us. There was nothing of this in Verne. The cannot live together, though poetry and science can.

Believed in Spirits

Flammarion's ventures in pure fiction, with its astronomical background, possess the same character—but they are still more mystical, as in the celestial romance "Lumen." Mysticism and science cannot live together, though poetry and science can.

The underlying source of Flammarion's frequent incoherence was plainly revealed by his publicity turning to spiritualism and avowing himself a believer in all sorts of stories of apparitions, supernatural happenings and returns of the dead in ghostly forms behind curtains, to perform foolish tricks and "communicate" nonsense and fulfill, or on lonely highways to frighten children and make dogs bark. A mind does not change its qualities by mere desire, but a learned change its spots.

Camille Flammarion was naturally a mystic, but in spite of this the brilliancy of his devoted admiration of the stars, enabled him to exercise a vast influence in his generation, an influence that was powerful for good as long as it was exercised to encourage love of the real wonders of nature.

To the Friend of the People:
Why would it not be a good economic move to merge the headquarters of the First Corps Area, United States Army, with the Second Corps Area, New York, making one corps area for this district? This was the condition before the war.

The present space now occupied by the army at South Boston could be leased for commercial purposes. This space is badly needed for business.

MEDBURY SAYS--

By John P. Medbury
A CONCORDING to a couple of United States senators, chewing gum is a big help to thinking. This is a great surprise as very few people have heard of the senators gave much time to thought.

THEY'RE usually too busy keeping their premises at any cost, however, to give much time to thought.

OF course this doesn't apply to all senators. Some of them will keep their premises at any cost, however, to give much time to thought.

A SENATOR'S job isn't an easy one, especially when he has to help your congressman send out orders.

STILL, we have to elect a man to office and then have him rely on the judgment in a five-cent package of gum.

GREED ON SIDE OF 'FOUR HORSEMEN'

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE Christian Century says that the four plagues that have cursed the world up to the present time are the liquor traffic, drug addiction, disease and war.

Combating these is a difficult and complicated matter. The trouble is that all of them are money-making concerns, and we have the greed of man lined up in opposition to human welfare.

The United States has disposed of the liquor traffic, but there are many people who think that this is but temporary. The drug traffic rages all over the world. It has its stronghold in India, where large areas are devoted to the raising of the poppy. Also there is much poppy in Egypt.

The trouble with these fields is that they belong to England, and England is making money out of selling their products to China and other backward countries.

Nothing but public opinion sufficiently aroused can induce these makers of money to let go of so good a thing. There is money in all kinds of vice and crime.

There was money in the lottery. There is money in the prize fight. And there was money in the saloon. Money will always be found a resourceful and persistent offender. Nothing but public opinion aroused can induce it to let go its hold when once it has fastened its jaws upon a victim.

The combating of war is a difficult problem. The trouble is that there is no morality among nations as there is among individuals. Morality comes from a crowd sense. A man who is alone on a desert island has no morality. It is only when he comes in contact with his fellows that he feels a moral obligation.

The trouble is that all nations so far have been leading an independent life and their final resources have always been force.

An awakened public opinion alone is the only thing that can bring the nations subject to the moral law. As for the combating of disease and the social evil, that is extremely difficult on account of the private nature of the vice.

In time, however, the forces of civilization and of morality will be sufficient to overcome these four horsemen of evil. (Copyright, 1935, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

MINGLING WITH SUCCESSFUL MEN INSPIRES ONE

Perhaps you have returned from your vacation with a pretty poor opinion of yourself and your success in life. For a time you mingled with men who have done big things in the world and are still doing well while things while you grind in the same old rut.

This experience is a good thing for you if you have reached the stage of complacency—quite content with your accomplishments. You had learned to adjust yourself to your circumstances and had become satisfied with the little niche you fill.

Therefore you were falling to exert yourself to the extent of your ability. But when you see the comforts and luxuries that other men can provide their families you are convinced that you should do better by you.

If this experience makes you disgusted and disinterested in your daily job it has been harmful to you. But if seeing better things has fired you with a determination to forge ahead and catch up with some of these valuable men you will do better.

Very likely if you had been willing earlier to sacrifice your time and energy and had exercised self-denial and given closer attention to your business you might have been more successful too. (Copyright, 1935, International Feature Service Inc.)
